An Exclusive Interview With:

DORLIN CHURNBUCKLE

Intro:

Dorlin is the brilliant mind behind the revolutionary "Bluetooth Bathrooms", a new technological system that is installed within restrooms a'swell as in an individual's bowels/bladder, which then connects your poo-poops and pee-pees straight to the toilet, without it having to leave your body! These advanced restroom technologies have already been installed in numerous businesses and other public buildings in which the restrooms can become crowded, removing the hassle of having to wait in lines or expose yourself to dirty potty germs. We had the pleasure of sitting and speaking with Mr. Churnbuckle about the inspiration behind "Bluetooth Bathrooms", the future of restroom sanitation and what more this incredible concept might be able to be applied to.

Q: So, Dorlin, what exactly compelled you to begin work on such a revolutionary system?

A: I was sick and fuckin' tired of rushing to the bathroom every time I needed to take a shit. I shit all the time, I'm tired.

Q: This new system, do you think it will help increase the cleanliness of public restrooms due to the fact that individuals will not have to physically enter to relieve themselves?

A: No. I make a big mess every goddamn time. I'm dirty and my messes demand cleaning.

Q: What other concepts, if any, do you think this advanced Bluetooth system could be applied to? Are there plans for expansion in the future?

At this point in the interview, Dorlin became unresponsive to questions. He began sweating profusely while sporadically uttering strained grunts and whines. The interviewer made note that his tummy was gurgling and churning.

TORM

MemoreTV's TORM follows TORM, who after being born when his 5 cores formed, realizes that he can never DIE or be KILLED. TORM cannot get hurt because each of his cores are 5 key elements of the world that can never die and have been around FOREVER BEFORE TORM BECAME FUSED. When these 5 cores are morphed into one, TORM was created and became immune to dying or getting hurt X5

EYEMASTER

Eye master holds the EYES of TORM, which every core sees out of. Each core does have their own eyes but they still can only see things together through the eye master. This is not a special ability that the eye master has, it's just more about the way TORM formed, and the element that the eyemaster is made out of nobody really knows what it does and any ability it has has never been utilized.

CHROME

The chrome core comes from the essence of chrome, which is actually not from the world, but happened to sneak its way into the teaming process probably coming from space when TORM was being fused. This otherworldly core gives torm access to internet and other social media sites to communicate with his war leaders that tell him what to do. It is with this core that TORM can also make his own posts to social media sites and also livestream.

Michael

This core is made up of the human style that we have in our world. TORM eats through Michael with the reality of being located on the left breast where the second nipple would be. It's a joke and is a funny character making the viewers like you laugh while you're along with him. He also BIG, which helps any TORM coming to be stopped from hitting anything important, but it also doesn't really matter because TORM cannot die and the second nipple is actually hidden under his left breast, instead of where the face would be.

ROBOT

This core is the robot element that we have to thank for tech in our world. He gives the chrome core the access to his systems which allow TORM to access the internet. Without this robot core the chrome core would have no way to reach the internet and TORM would have no way to receive instruction from the war leaders telling him who to fight next. The robot core also used tech to replicate the same function of a human arm, but now with X1.10 the strength, allowing TORM to open doors or break through Michael core.

DRAGON

The dragon core is made up of the key element that allows beings to fly and breathe fire. Unfortunately, this core is only on the left leg so TORM cannot fly or breathe fire at all, actually. The dragon core does allow TORM to run twice the speed of a human, but in combination with the yellow Michael leg which is in a boot shape and has half the running capacity of a healing human leg, TORM remains just as capable as a normal human being, yet so many more ways capable thanks to his other core's abilities.

UFOh No: THE YELLOWSTONE MARKETING DISASTER

By Dan Levine

In February 2022, the Paramount Network officially renewed Yellowstone for a fifth and final season, the second half of which would air November of 2024. While audiences around the world rejoiced, Marketing Director Duncan Fitz got to work. Fitz had a little over two years to launch the largest marketing campaign in the network's history. What transpired would shake our faith in governmental institutions and force us to question our place in the universe.

Last month, Duncan Fitz released 2,000 drones into the sky and unknowingly started an alien invasion. "They was supposed to say 'Watch Yellowstone'" mumbles Fitz, his mouth filled with dirty candy. Duncan and I sit at a rest stop off the NJ Turnpike. A TV plays a news segment about New Jersey's UFO problem: Duncan can only shake his head. "We was gonna make e'erbody watch it. Now nobody proolly watch."

WATCH
YELLOWSTONE
NOW!

Concept art for Yellowstone campaign

It was meant to be a cultural event, a promotional coup devised by a marketing genius to prey on the public's fascination with spectacle and technology, a nod to the larger-than-life ethos of the Dutton ranch. In the battle being fought tooth-and-nail for our attention, this would be the atomic bomb. It was a failure.

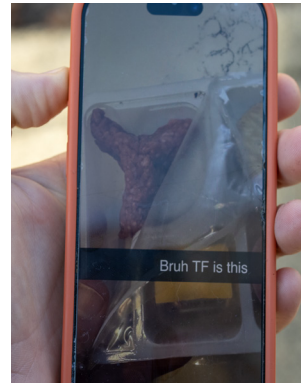

On November 19th, the Morris County Prosecutor's Office received their first report of drone activity. Then the dam burst. Overnight thousands of social media videos uploaded to X.com showed drones hovering menacingly in a bitter coldnight's sky. Theories ranged from government experiments to extraterrestrial reconnaissance missions. The nation held its breath, waiting for the news of first contact. They watched Yellowstone to distract themselves from armageddon.

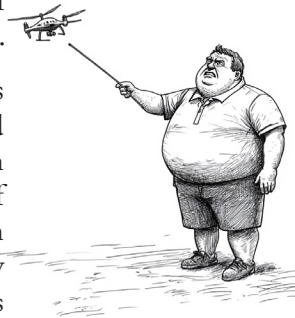

The machines lacked programming and resisted corralling efforts. Hovering over lakes, houses, tree-lined suburban streets, the drones evoked not the stoic majesty of Montana but rather the feverish imaginings of H.G Wells.

The "Yellowstone Fuck Up" – as it is now being called – takes its place among a long list of poorly-conceptualized stunts. In anticipation of Yellowstone's first episode in June of 2018, the team at Paramount partnered with Lunchables to launch the "Yellowstone Ranch Pack" featuring raw ground beef in the shape of a Y. "What are you supposed to do with this?" one Instagram post read.

There were no repercussions then and it doesn't look like there will be consequences now. "I'm ok proolly," Duncan confided in me as we walk back to our cars in the lot of the John Fenwick Service Plaza. "I still can't get the planes back. Maybe it really is aliens? You never know... Maybe it's a coverup. Proolly a coverup."

Despite national chaos, Yellowstone is doing just fine. It remains one of the most watched dramas on television; its sprawling tales of land, power, and family as magnetic as ever. Perhaps the Duttons would appreciate the irony: a marketing stunt that, through its failure, embodies the very themes of hubris the show so often wrestles with.

Before he gets to his car, Duncan places his head in his hands and lets out a sob. "We was suppose to all bust together. Now the White House got aliens onnit." I hug him as he cries violently. It's getting dark and his drones will be out tonight. Maybe they look down and see two gigantic obese men hugging in a parking lot. Maybe it makes them want to return home.

Welcome to 2025!!!!

2025 is "The last Year." There will be no more after 2025.
