Rancheroni & Cheese

With Buttermilk, Buffalo, and Bacon

20 minutes

This ranch-themed Mac 'n Cheese is a variation of America's Test Kitchen's simple stove top macaroni. Their innovations include not straining (allowing the starch of the noodles to support the texture of the sauce) and using American cheese from the deli counter. This cheese is the special trick of this recipe, because it is full of emulsifiers that prevent the cheese from breaking apart at high heat. So don't skimp on it, and don't buy it sliced. Get it from the deli counter. It's also important to weigh your pasta since the liquid will be absorbed.

To ranchify this recipe we use buttermilk, fresh herbs, and typical ranch seasoning. To get that buffalo flare, we simply use Crystal brand hot sauce. Though buffalo sauce would be fine.

Bring buttermilk and water to a boil, stirring to prevent buttermilk breakup. Add noodles. Boil until just past al dente, about 6 minutes and noodles have absorbed most liquid.

Reduce heat.

Finely chop herbs. Cook, then dice bacon. Grate cheeses separately. Stir-in American cheese with noodle mixture until melted. Add the herbs, ranch powder, cayenne, and bacon. Remove from heat. Add the Vermont cheddar, stirring lightly but allowing it to melt on its own. Season to taste with salt and pepper. If mixture dries out, stir in a 1/4 cup buttermilk.

In a small pan, mix panko and a pinch of salt with olive oil and heat until browned.

Serve in a bowl, top with panko and garnish with a sprig of dill. Add a dozen dashes of Crystal hot sauce. Enjoy.

1^{1/2} cup water

1 cup buttermilk

8^{oz} elbow macaroni

4^{oz} white American cheese (from deli counter, not shelf)

4^{oz} Vermont sharp cheddar

1^{1/2} tsp chives

1^{1/2} tsp cilantro

1 oz Panko

1/2 oz bacon

1 Tbsp ranch powder

Pinches of cayenne

Dill sprigs for garnish

Crystal brand hot sauce

BÅLLKRÅK

The KråkStik

Making the design of BÅLLKRÅK was an absolute number one thrill of my life. Only at home did I previously smash and crack my balls into each hole. Now, all people of the Earth can join each other for a game of BÅLLKRÅK. Connected by the way of PRE-COM, every player is instantly notified of their opponent's recent crack. We created the KråkStik to be used with the mouth and throat or as well as the player anus. This way, the player can use their hands to hold their genital and mimic the holding of the pool stick—until they ejaculate that is. It is my hope that players all over the world will ejaculate simultaneously while crack-ing billiard balls and sinking trick shots.

THE SOUTHEASTERN TRICKERS

By Doug Bleichner

When I first entered “Old Timers & Chimers Clocks Shop” at 409 S 9th Street in Opelika, Alabama, I was immediately struck with the smell of the place. It smelled like human fecal matter but also delighted the senses in a way only a delicious home cooked meal or expensive perfume might. Standing in the corner of the room was the shopkeeper who nodded at me but said nothing. I nodded in return and continued to the back room. I was not here to purchase a clock or have my existing clock repaired. I was here to see the trickers.

I had driven an hour and a half from Atlanta to meet the notorious men here, a location which they insisted upon. The insistence came at the end of a long email correspondence that we had built up over the years. In 2010 I learned of the trickers and who they were - a group of two men who spent their time tricking individuals in small towns across the Southeast. They had been on the run from the law for over a decade at that point but even the slightest features of their identities were completely unknown.

At the time, I stumbled upon an online chat room community containing a group of self proclaimed tricker lovers. The chat room was full of individuals who almost seemed to worship the infamous trickers and discussed their guesses about who the men were, where they lived, and what their next trick might be.

I joined the chat room mostly out of curiosity but quickly became something of a tricker fanatic myself. Eventually in 2015, I received a private message from “tricker1”, who claimed to be himself one of the two infamous trickers. I didn’t have any reason to believe him so I brushed off his claim, until one day in 2020, I received a message from tricker1 at 6:00am on December 3rd. The message simply read “I’m about to trick.” Those who follow the trickers closely know about that infamous day. At 12 noon on December 3rd I was flabbergasted - the trickers performed their biggest trick yet on an unlucky group of construction workers in Meridian, Mississippi.

That was all the confirmation I needed. I was talking to one of the trickers. I didn’t hear from tricker1 again until a year and a half later. His next message read “Meet us in the backroom at “Old Timers & Chimers Clocks Shop at 409 S 9th Street in Opelika, Alabama tomorrow at 8:00am.” That was all I needed to get me into the car and speeding towards the state line.

I was headed into the backroom where the trickers told me to meet them when I realized that the doorway at the back of the shop did not lead to any backroom. I pushed it open to reveal the alleyway outside and it dawned on me that the Old Timers & Chimers Clocks Shop showroom was the entire inside of the building. I looked back at the old man who stood in the corner of the room when I entered, but he was gone. Then it hit me - I had been tricked.
