New Discovery ROCKS Horse History

Doug Bleichner

A new Archaeological discovery could change everything in regards to what we know about how the Romans decorated their horses.

For centuries, historians and scholars of ancient Rome have never been quite clear on how and in what ways horses were decorated during antiquity.

One thing has always been certain according to Victor Tornmaster, associate professor of Roman Studies at Vanderbilt University. Tornmaster states that "Romans dressed their horses in gowns as well as what we might call ancient swim trunks and bikinis for the girl horses."

Tornmaster was part of a 394 person team from Vanderbilt university who, along with scholars from the Vatican, unearthed a series of over 1200 stone tablets containing a correspondence between the second century roman Senator Jarsinius Barkus Maximus, and the Roman Senate in which Jarsinius announces his retirement from duty as a Senator.

One seemingly minor sentence within the text of one stone tablet, tablet 912, stunned historians. In it, Jarsinius mentions his love of the Senate Horses and refers to their "Dangles," effectively ending an age-old debate.

"We thought that maybe they were putting dangles on the horses, but we weren't sure. When we saw Jarsinius outright refer to the dangles, we all fainted and hit our heads on the hard stone around us." says Tornmaster.

The Text Found on Tablet 912 in its entirety:

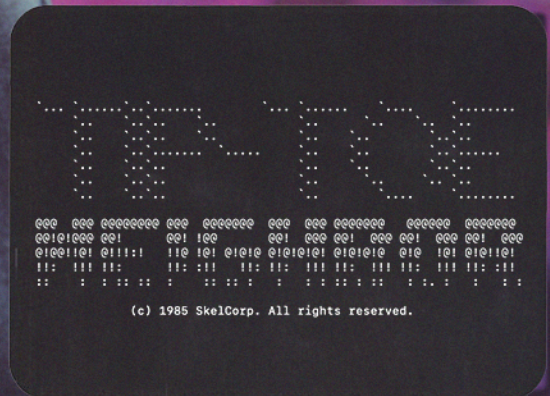

"I, Jarsinius Barkus Maximus, son of Darquinious do hereby offer my resignation as senator for the southern region of Darca. Let it be known that my son, Sorquetious Pillian, the third nephew of Portinius Maximus, eleventh son of Tarquitious Marzinius Titan and the thirty fourth elder of Phyrion will rule in my stead. It is with great reverence that I bow my head as I reflect on my years of service alongside ToRmentious Borphorium IV, Tardinious Startinious III, Lasternium Charquinious Maximus II, Gorquinious Mazimus Bracas Tordinious Sorphinious Jarquillion Tarnatious, Borphus, and the fine gentlemen of the Stable Crew, who, with great haste, shoveled the horses poopoo during our historic senate meetings. I will miss those noble steeds and do wish to employ those gentlemen of the senate who do own the beasts known as Horsinius Maximus, Gallopus Trotinious, and Bucker Fastman, if they may find time for an old man to enjoy the presece of their hooves and hair dangles from time to time. I will still be traveling alongside my son, Sorquetious Pillian to the senate meetings despite my retirement.

I would also like to thank the tireless efforts of Rortinious Baccusius, Percussious Maxillian, Tordation Sorquatinious, Phyliom Blisternious, Bastermimious Darquation, Dormation Bartinious, Lastermanious Teraneanious, Bartiounious Gaoudriounsious, Paharesnious Restornsioususions."

Skeleton Realm Magazine AMERICAN ICON SERIES

I'll never forget the first time I turned on "Ray Billings' Magic World." It was Christmas morning in 1978 and I had just received a brand new remote controlled SharnTorn SnakeTruck Gunner Pod Triple Platform Skate Bop-Top Bucket Blaster. It was the episode where Ray puts out a fire started by StarDunce using his own urine and fecal matter. I was hooked.

For 30 years Ray blessed us with the type of quality you'd expect from a single father of 12, that is, great. He was a determined entertainer, an ardent basketball coach, but above all else, a municipal bond trader, and a great one at that.

Though Ray's shining light will never grace our television sets again, I think I speak for all Americans when I say, each time we click on our set, we will see Ray on the screen, in our minds eye.

I know I also speak for all Americans when I say that I wish Ray could live on not just in our thoughts but in our words. This is sadly now an impossibility.

WHAT RAY BILLINGS MEANT TO ME

Goodnight Ray.

This week, congress passed a bill which prohibits mention of Ray not only in print and broadcast entertainment or journalism but in daily conversation as well. Even though I totally understand and agree with the justification for this new law, I must say that it is a bit bittersweet to see it pass unanimously.

So with that, We say goodnight to Ol' Ray and goodmorning to a world without Ray Billings.

Let me tell you a story about the old King, Perper the III.

Born to Gurgat and Blurn,
At first sight, one knew He was touched by the Holy Graces.

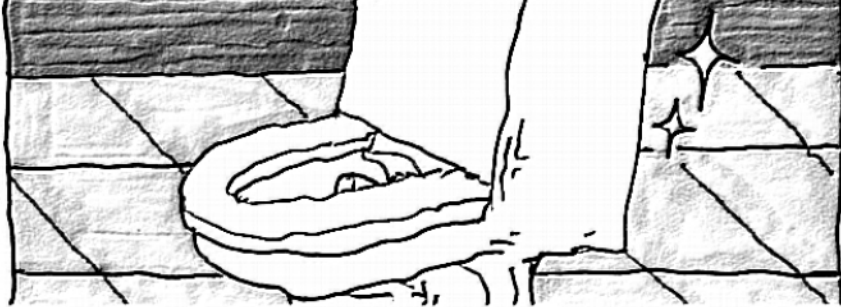

The baby Perper does not dump but once during his youth. It was a tremendously painful and widely celebrated moment.

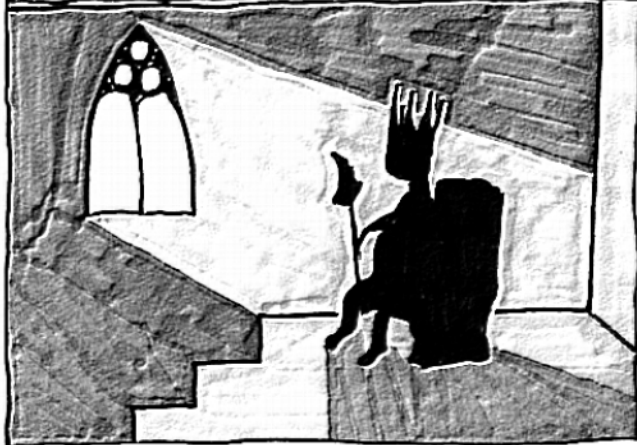

King Perper took the throne.

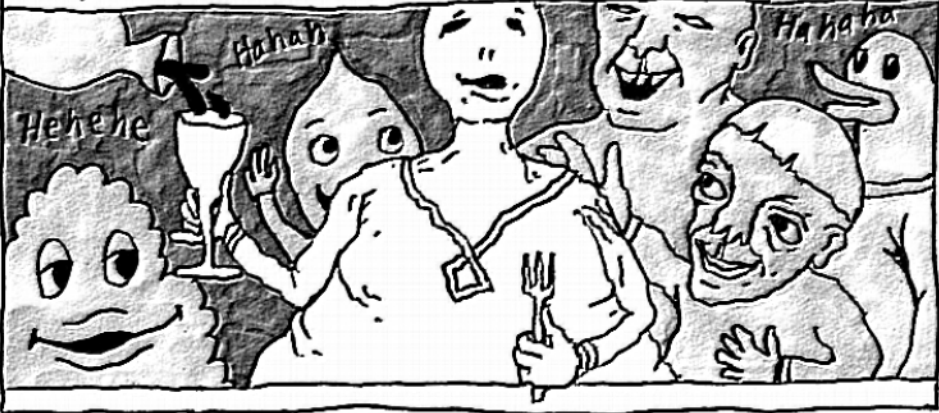

It was shown by a court sage that perper would sit upon a tall and impressive seat, with a hollow area to catch his dumps, if another came.

But the day never came.

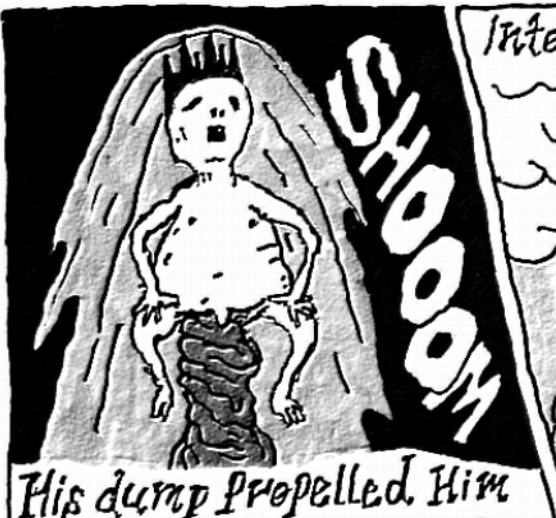

King Porper grew vast and gorbulant due to His peculiar lifestyle. He was Loved by all.

The day Porper's bowel moved,

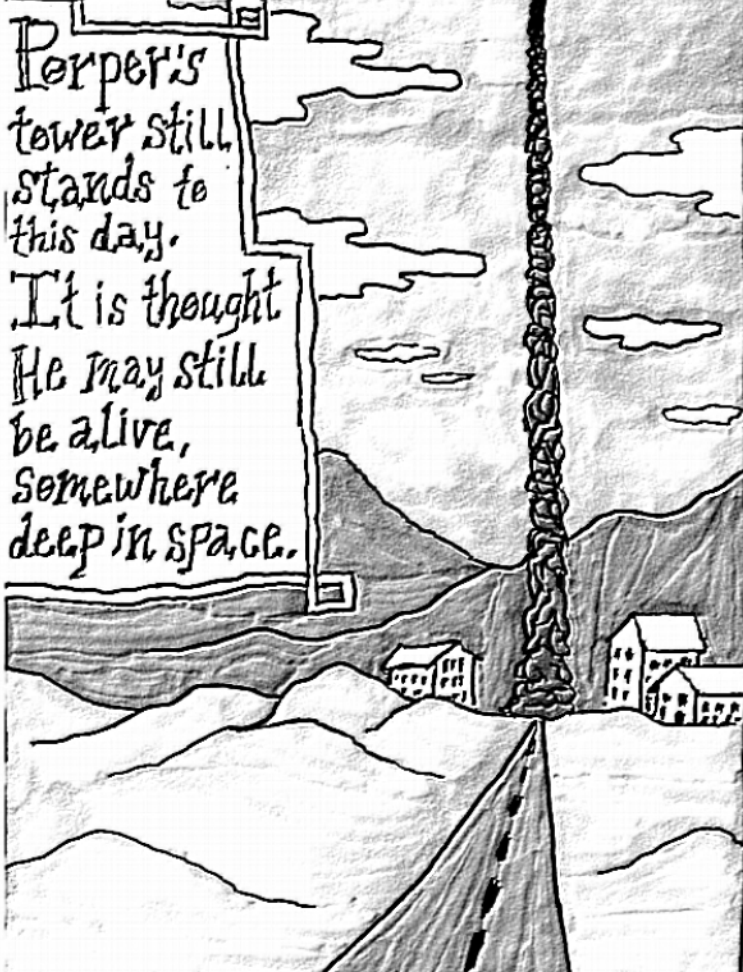

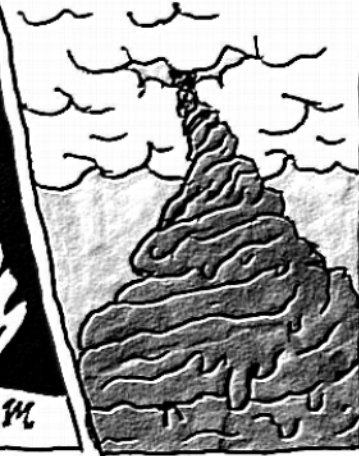

it's time.

His dump Propelled Him into the heavens.

Porper's tower still stands to this day. It is thought He may still be alive, somewhere deep in space.

Certain devote porpists have attempted to emulate Porper's Lifestyle. All but one have died.

The Porpist who Survived, Gary Lundsted, lives in Idaho on top of his own smaller but no less impressive dump.

BIOGRAPHICAL DATA

U.S.A.

SAC Henry Shultz Barton

February 1964

(aX1) (U) NAME: SAC Henry Shultz Barton, DAI.

(C/NFD) POSITION: Special-Agent-In-Charge of covert operation BORM HOLE, 26 July 1964. Currently AWOL.

(S/NFD) TASK: Study of the underground "Mole-men" (Desig. singular Borm, plural Borms) physiology and culture; Research regarding possible Human-Borm interbreeding; Infiltration of high ranking positions within Borm governments.

(U)

(aX2) (C/NFD) CURRENT SITUATION: Three months into the operation, on November 9 1964, SAC Henry Shultz Barton contracted an as of yet unknown sexually transmitted disease; designated "tussis phallus" for it's initial effect on the male genitalia. The following week four members tasked with close-Borm contact roles in operation BORM HOLE started showing identical symptoms to Henry. The disease is now presumed to have originated from Borm subject A32, who was frequently visited for "unofficial business" and given the nickname "The Borm Hole" by members of the operation.

(aX2.1) (S/NFD) On November 22 1964, Henry Barton was temporarily placed inside a solitary cell after he viciously attacked several BORM HOLE operatives, killing three and wounding twelve. The sudden attack is thought to have been caused by an advanced stage of Henry's infection. Autopsy data from the deceased would later reveal that all wounds Henry inflicted came exclusively from biting. The morning following Henry's containment it was discovered that he had escaped and left three holes, each 3 feet in diameter. Further study on the holes revealed bite marks on the surrounding cement, as well as the fact that each hole led straight to the major Borm city codenamed "Henryland." Henry has since been missing, any sighting should be reported immediately.

WEDNESDAY

WATCH FOR "CURB LOVERS!"

CORBO BREELY, CO-EDITOR

Motorists traveling in the southern sections of Snorfton beware: a new craze has taken over known as "curb mooching." Mocked by some as a challenge or prank, the moocher partakes in a series of odd activities involving the lumpy concrete edges of roadways. These include sitting, rubbing, caressing, licking, insulting, sneezing, moistening, tripping over, and playing table tennis on our beautiful curbs. We asked a Snorfton high school student (Pictured to the right) to opine on the matter: "It's like, something to do, with you know, your friends." When asked why curbs in particular, he said: "The texture... so rough..."

After answering our questions, the young man proceeded to lie down and gently stroke the concrete curb and whisper affectionately. We advise all drivers to be on the lookout for any delinquents near the side of the road and drive 4.5 cm closer to the center of the road to avoid crushing inattentive moochers. The Snorfton Police Department declined to comment since Chief Shoecheck was taking a

CHORK NORKORKICK, ASSISTANT JOURNALIST

Everyone loves to get down and dirty in a classic coal pit. But visitors from out of state suggest that coal could be used for more than just a good "coal roll."

Glesom Grumsly, a furnace salesman from Boston, MA arrived in Snorfton last week and tried to purchase coal for "energy purposes." Continued on page II.
