Jack Pumped Horns

The New Sound of Halloween

Those "pump horners" don't seem so dumb no more. Horners went to pump town this year with a halloween swagger to match. Get Pumped and get horned with a horner's dirty pump-horn. Instead of regular horns, the pump horned horners blast a classic horned squeek with a pump on they head or a pump on they horn to match.

When you sit and watch a dirty horner with a modified pump that squeeks horn toots, you get the feeling that halloween is right around the corner. You get a feeling that horned individuals with a desire to modify their horn-tools with a pump are here to stay in regards to the halloween season, and not just here to stay, but here to play aswell. Those dirty horners and their new pumps make me want to scream.

A hater might tell these horners to "quit", or "hush," however a lover of the horners would say otherwise. It will be interesting to see how lovers of the classic horners will respond to this new pumped style.

Halloween will be the time that the pumped style will come out in its full form, to display for haters and lovers of horns the new sound. Get ready lovers and haters alike, for the pumped horn style is something totally new. You likely have not and will not ever hear a pumped horn "quite like this."

Whether the pump is busted on the horner's head or his or her brass toy, the pump involvement has had and will continue to have a tremendous effect on the horner's classic brass sound. Some enjoy and others don't.

I was also wondering if the pumped horners would say "trick or treat" at their next concert performance. They could say that because it's halloween, but also because it's true that the pumped horn may be a trick or it could be a treat depending on how you look at it. If you are a hater you might see the pumped horn as a trick, however if you are a lover you would enjoy it as a treat.

Screaming horns will vibrate the pumps no doubt. If the pump is on the horners brass toy, it could vibrate until it explodes. If it is on the horner's head the same could be true because a horner buzzes they lips very hard in order to make the horn toot, and this buzzing could very well also vibrate and blow up the fragile pump.

This incredibly dangerous activity is worth it. The new sound it creates for the horner is invaluable and it is worth it to risk a fragile pump blowing up and killing themselves and audience members

ABSTRACT

A tubular cylindric container designed for the containment and storage of a plurality of soda for sucking of that liquid sodas fluid in a thermally insulated storage space. A cylindrical housing having the appearance of a tube package container surrounds and is spaced from an internal sleeve defining a storage space on the interior thereof wherein a closure assembly is provided to the filling with the soda. The closure assembly is further structured to provide fluid communication with liquids maintained within the storage space for drinking thereof. These components jointly define an insulated chamber designed for the retention of sodas.

BY DAN LEVINE

Stern is one of the most popular out there at this point and I can't pretend there wasn't part, if not all, of that fame that was a direct result of a 5-part system I created.

As a marketer, we concentrate on numerous areas: eyes, likes, and "hit that subscribe" and shares. It's time to share everything:

STEP 1: VIEWS

Uhhhh I think you're gonna want some views if you want to achieve Stern-level fame and heights. That's why the first step is views. First go to your YouTube channel and open the "settings." Uncheck "Public View" and hit "OK." This will lead to a separate dialogue box that asks you to confirm your decision. After hitting "OK" again, you will be able to process by

Khatru's INSIGHTS ON WEALTH & LIFESTYLE

Jet Ryder is a name not unfamiliar to controversy and intrigue. After being the face of "Rich & Famous Lives" during its Season 2 premiere, Jet's once quiet and relatively humble persona has morphed into one steeped in constant public interest. We recently managed to secure an exclusive interview with the innovative entrepreneur and thought leader to peer into some of his insights into the elusive world of "Jet Money."

What does "Jet Money" mean to you?
Jet Money is a lifestyle, a passion, a drive if you will. There's money everywhere you look, stop wasting time with your "job" and go find it. Never stop searching, and never let anyone tell you that you can't succeed. If they do, sue them.

What is the key to wealth?
There are many doors to wealth, and not every one needs a key. That said, I truly feel the key to wealth is finding where the money is and being a part of it. For some people, that might mean being the son of a Fortune 500 CFO.

"I truly feel the key to wealth is finding where the money is and being a part of it."

What's it like being on such a hit show?
Some people can't handle the stress of the cameras and being the center of attention. I can.

It seems you've been on top of the world. What's next for Jet?
Money. But to be specific, doing whatever it takes to pump my success stack. It's important to stop and realize that the "week-end" is a modern invention meant to hold you back from wealth.

What are some Jet lifestyle secrets?
Entertainment on the go is essential for anyone looking to travel. It doesn't matter how wealthy you are, MeMoreTV's Triple Play Classic service is a must if you're looking to enjoy your favorite games and shows anytime.

MEET THE "AGE PUMPERS" WHO ARE THEY?

Meet the "Age Pumpers," a group of youngsters who will do whatever it takes to get more wisdom like their elders. What originally started out as a club of friends in Happy Valley, Oregon meeting at the park over the weekends has recently become a national phenomenon. Here are some interviews from the group that started it all!

Name: Bella | Pumped Name: Helen | Age: 16 | Pumped Age: 64

"I started age-pumping back when I was 16 — that was all the way back in 1965. Times were simpler then... I'm not exactly the wisest or oldest member of our group, but I love to crochet, host book clubs with the gals, collect my pension every month, and help plan meetings for the Pumpers."

Name: Brian | Pumped Name: Chester | Age: 13 | Pumped Age: 89

"Yes, 'sonny,' you heard me right. Respect your elders. What were you asking again? I forgot to bring a hearing aid. Oh, yes. The Pumpers. Yes, uh... I quite enjoy complaining about politics, my wife, and my pension with my fellow Pumpers. Would you happen to have a cough drop?"

Name: Tom | Pumped Name: Frankie | Age: 19 | Pumped Age: 66

"Get me a damn cup of water! I'm dying over here! What? The Happy Valley Pumpers? So that's what you brought me here for? You goddamned [expletive]! I knew I couldn't trust you journalists! I know every single thing you [expletive] say on TV is all fake anyway! Fake! [expletive]!"

Name: Jada | Pumped Name: Gretel | Age: 15 | Pumped Age: 74

"Ah, well... I've been an Age Pumper for a very long time now, sweetheart. My favorite activity? Oh, well, I'm in Helen's book club, but I don't like crocheting like she does — I'm much more of a quilting lady. I recently made one for my granddaughter using some new technique from a book..."

An Interview with entrepreneur Gerald "Bean-Consumer" Beanman

by Gandalf the Black

Gerald Beanman is a highly successful and intelligent entrepreneur from Longorberton, who made his money consuming beans. We have the pleasure of welcoming him to talk to us today about his life, business and the hardcore unrest going on in Longorberton a'swell.

Gerald, we understand that you've had to make a hasty retreat from your hometown. First of all, how are you and your family?

We're okay, thanks. Getting out of there wasn't easy, but we're safe for now.

I'm glad to hear that. We can get into that in a bit, but for now, please could you give a brief summary of your journey so far and how you became so successful?

Sure! Let's go back to the basics, shall we? It all started when I was a young lad, a spry boy of perhaps 5, no more than 6, years. I was pestering my poor old ma for some pocket money to buy some chocolate orbs, but she told me "HUSH!" This advice struck me, and I realised I would have to make money myself.

Of course, there's not a lot of boy of 5, no more than 6, years can do. Washing cars and mowing lawns aren't really an option. But you can eat beans. And so I did. Every day before school, I would go to every house on the street and ask for the inhabitants' beans. They were happy to oblige, giving me anything from a can of baked beans (D-tier beans at best) to homegrown butterbeans (strong A-tier), which I would then consume in front of them. For the service I rendered them, I was rewarded with a few coins. And I never stopped. All the way to the age of 14 I would do this, every day before school. Eventually, I realised I would make much more money if I simply dropped out and devoted all my time to consuming beans.

At the age of 16, I had set up my business and was eating beans for corporate clients, and soon I was able to start employing my friends who were still in school. It all snowballed from there really. I was pumping those beans down the back of my throat hardcore style, and my company was busting its value with a financial swagger to match.

Epic! But it wasn't all fun and beans, was it?

Actually, yes, it was.

Epic! Such an inspiring story. Before we move on, do you have any important takeaways about entrepreneurship for the readers?

No.

Tight! Well, let's talk about the impact you've had on your local community.

Sounds good to me! Having made plenty of money, I felt it was time to give back to Longorberton. I've funded several public projects, most notably Bean Library, named after my role model, Ben Bean, and the Bean Sports & Spirituality centre - ha ha, not named after Ben Bean this time! It's dedicated to bean-based sports and spirituality. And then there's Bean Park, which I named in honour of my ma, whose middle name is "Deen", which sounds a bit like bean.

This is great stuff! But this time, it really wasn't a walk in the bean, was it?

Ha ha, sadly not. We've had an outbreak of pie-pumping pranksters recently. They seem like jolly fellows, until they sell you a DIRTY and NOT YUMMY pie or knock you down with a heavy pie. Many citizens are living in fear, and it only seems to get worse every day. The Longorberton City Council Communications and Community Relations Style department put out a poster last month asking for information about them, but unfortunately, we've not had any luck. They continue to roam the streets, pranking anyone they choose. Please, dear readers, if you have managed to take any pictures of them in action, or have any information regarding their whereabouts or misdeeds, get in touch with the council at longorbertoncitycouncil@gmail.com. They are very much stressed by the current situation, so they might not respond immediately, but any information you send in will be passed on to the crisis response team.

Actually we were talking about your personal life and the allegations, but I guess we can skip that part of the interview. Hmm... that does just about wrap up our discussion then! Well, Gerald, thank you once again for your time, and for all you're doing to help Longorberton! Please pass on our regards to the people of Longorberton. Our pumps and busts will be with them in this difficult time.

My pleasure!
